GANS WILL MEET
BRITT MARCH 17

CHICAGO, January 8.—Joe Gans, the negro pugilist of Baltimore, has arrived in Chicago and begun a week's engagement in a local theatre.

For the first time since his memorable but unfortunate contest with Terry McGovern in Tattersall's, now over six years ago, the public saw him in action in this city.

Besides showing a mite of prowess, Gans set at rest several rumors. For one thing he denied that he will fight Jack O'Brien, at least for some time to come. Instead, he says he has passed his word that he will meet Jimmy Britt in Yonahop on St. Patrick's Day, and that he will go through with it unless Britt puts too many obstacles in the way. The weight is all right, (Gans will make 125 pounds at the ring) for James Edward. The thing that Britt is hanging out for is an even split of the money, and that Gans absolutely will not stand for.

"There must be a winner's and a loser's end," said Gans to-day, and when he said it he showed that he has no idea of making Britt a present of anything.

"I would like the money split 75 per cent. to the winner and 25 per cent. to the loser," he continued, "but I will do as well as 40 and 40 to the match. Britt will not get an even split with me, and the amount of money he gets in any contest with me will depend upon how well he can fight."

Gans is crazy to get Britt into the ring again. The two men fought once, and there are few that have forgotten that contest. Gans won on a foul after Britt had apparently beaten the negro to a pulp.

That, said Gans, was his last "crooked" fight. He broke with Al. Herford and is now his own boss. He is fighting on the "square" now and naturally wants to show the public that there are not enough Britts in the world to beat him.

TRI-STATE LEAGUE LIKELY TO PEACEFULLY ENTER FOLD

CINCINNATI, O., January 7.—Representatives of the Tri-State League, known as the "Pennsylvania Outlaws," arrived here to-day for the purpose of presenting an application for protection under the National Agreement in the National Baseball Commission. President Carpenter, of the Tri-State League, after an informal talk with Chairman Herrmann, of the national commission, declared that the outlook for a cessation of hostilities between his league, which harbors a number of players who have jumped contracts or broken agreements with other clubs, was exceedingly bright.

"It looks as though there would be controversies over only two or three players," said Mr. Carpenter, "and I see no reason why those differences should not be straightened out quickly when the formal meeting of our league with the commission takes place to-morrow. As soon as we have finished our work with the commission we will go to New York, where the minors will be in session, and there we made members of the big baseball family. The outlook to-night is for a peaceful settlement of all differences between us and the national commission, and I believe that everything will be lovely when we get together."

Jim Sebring, who is one of the ineligible players of the Tri-State League, is here for the purpose of securing reinstatement at the hands of the national commission. "I am under a two-year contract to the Chicago Nationals," said Sebring, "and expect to play with them. If, as reported, I am to be transferred to Philadelphia, I'll quit the game rather than play in the Quaker City. I will not play in Philadelphia under any circumstances." President Murphy, of the Chicago Nationals, is here, but not talking on the Sebring subject.

CHARLES F. CARPENTER.

"OUTLAW" TRI-STATE LEAGUE
IN THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

The Refuge of Contract-Jumping Players Has Been Whitewashed and Is Now Among the Baseball "Elect."

NEW YORK, January 8.—Putting aside disputes and differences of years' standing, the National Association of Baseball Leagues, which includes the minor leagues, adopted a resolution at its annual meeting here to-day admitting the "Outlaw" Tri-State League to membership as a Class B organization. This was in consonance with the action of

TERRY MCGOVERN'S
PITABLE PLIGHT

Once Great Little Fighter Has
General Paresis in Its Worst Stage.

NEW YORK, January 8.—All hopes for even the partial recovery of Terry McGovern from his insanity was blasted to-day, when Dr. Glens, in whose sanitarium in Stamford, Conn., the little fighter is confined, stated that Terry is incurable.

"The is no hope for him," said Dr. Glens. "He is dead mentally now, and it will not be long before he is physically dead."

Terry has general paresis in its worst stage. His brain is incurably affected from the result of his debauches during the past few years, and he was in such a condition to-day that even his wife was not permitted to see him. The latter is still at her home in Brooklyn, but heard this morning that Terry was considerably worse, and tried to get permission to see him. It was denied because of his pitiable plight, and the fact that a visit of Johnny Burdick, his chum and former sparring partner, had excited him.

Burdick journeyed to Stamford to see the former fighter, believing that McGovern would soon be cured and that the day was not far off when he would be back in the ring fighting to regain the laurels first wrested from him by Young Corbett.

When Burdick saw McGovern he realized his condition. A little weakened up chap came before him, laughing hilariously, talking incoherently, and as he walked there were wild gestures of his movements that at times made him stagger. His clothes hung about him like bags, his cheeks were ashen and there was no sign of life's blood in his lips.

Monster Benefit for Terry.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., January 8.—The monster testimonial benefit which is to be tendered to Terry McGovern at the National Athletic Club on Wednesday evening, January 15th, promises to be one of the biggest boxing events of the season, for nearly every boxer of note in this city is anxious to take part in the affair. The program is now being arranged by Jack McGuigan and Law Bailey, who have charge of the boxing end of the benefit. Johnny Oliver and Joe Humphries are arranging the details in New York, and from the present indication there will be six New Yorkers pitted against local boys, and these boys will form the main part of the program. Popular prices will prevail, and tickets will be put on sale at all the principal hotels. The financial end of the benefit will be in the hands of Harry Edwards and Johnny Eckhardt, who will gladly furnish tickets and all other information.

LOUDOUN HOUNDS.

Mr. Davis's Pack Dens Fox After a Hard Run.

LEESBURG, Va., January 8.—Loudoun hounds, Westmoreland Davis, Mr. F. H., met to-day at Leesburg. They were cast east of the town and, striking a trail, led off in the direction of "Morven Park" estate and the Selma estate, then east toward the Potomac pitted against local boys, and these boys will form the main part of the program. Popular prices will prevail, and tickets will be put on sale at all the principal hotels. The financial end of the benefit will be in the hands of Harry Edwards and Johnny Eckhardt, who will gladly furnish tickets and all other information.

GREAT LEWECK TO RACE BACKWARDS

Notable Event on Roller Skating
Rink in Richmond This Week.

In fulfilling the management's promise to give its patrons something out of the ordinary, the great Leweck has been secured at heavy expense to come to Richmond and give performances the last three days of this week every night at 9:30 o'clock. This marvel on skates, as he is called, hails from Milwaukee, and some of the tricks he does on rollers are said to be amazing. While flying around the rink backwards and he skates as rapidly backwards as forwards—Leweck hurdles six chairs in a flying leap, goes over tables with ease and, in fact, keeps one's hair on end during his entire act. His imitations of beginners keep his audiences in a continual uproar.

Besides his regular performance on Friday night Leweck has posted a forfeit of $10 that he can beat any of the local skaters in a one-mile race, he being willing to skate backwards, allowing his opponent to skate forward. The arrangements are under way to have Young come here from Lynchburg, if possible, to race Brent on Friday night, Hawley or Taylor will be pitted against him in the contest. With the act of Leweck, the race between Brent and either Young or some other equally fast skater, the entire series of new moving pictures to be shown, Friday night will be a banner night in the roller skating amusement line at the big rink here.

AMERICAN TURFMAN
LEAVES FOR EUROPE

Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., to View
English, Irish and South of France Steeplechases.

NEW YORK, January 8.—Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., the leading cross-country turfman of America, and owner of Good and Plenty, Hyks and many other fine performers, as well as half owner of Saldavere, will leave to-day for a trip to England, Ireland and perhaps Nice, at which latter place an important steeplechase meeting is now in progress.

Mr. Hitchcock may, while abroad, purchase some good Irish or English jumpers to replenish his stable here. Just now there is in England, the property of Thomas Clyde, of Philadelphia, a very fast steeplechase mare named Cinders, by Florizel, out of Cinder Ellen, and a mare's performance have aroused much attention. It is the type of jumper which should win in this country. If Mr. Hitchcock could induce Mr. Clyde to enter her for the many valuable stakes which during the season adorn the local programs. The Nite meeting will conclude the season of the turfman, and Mr. Hitchcock may be able to recoup some of the best French jumpers if he goes there.

SYSONBY IN ACTION.

Skeleton of Great Horse Will Be Mounted in His Stride.

NEW YORK, January 8.—Officials of the American Museum of Natural History have finally decided to have the bones of Sysonby, James R. Koenig's great race-horse, which died early last summer, of a violent disease, mounted as showing him in his stride.

When the mounting is completed the horse will be placed in the wing of the museum where Elmer Wilkes, the trotter, is on exhibition. Dr. S. H. Hubbs, chief of the museum, is preparing Sysonby's bones. Professor Herman C. Bumpus, director, said last night:

"We have decided to have the greatest race-horse of his day appear as if he was racing and striving his hardest to win. For that reason Sysonby will be mounted in his full stride."

The bones have been disarticulated, but the mounting of the skeleton will be a long, tedious undertaking. Dr. Hubbs has decided to make repeated visits to the racetracks and take instantaneous photographs of thoroughbreds galloping. This will be done so that the pose and movement of the race-horse can be carefully studied. When Dr. Hubbs has studied the bones, he will be able to show Sysonby as if at top speed.

Sysonby was buried about two months before disinterment, and in consequence the skeleton is not complete. Dr. Hubbs found, however, that the horse had lungs of great power and depth, and the so-called cannon bones, between the knee and ankle, were unusually long and slender, typical of a racer. Dr. Hubbs said that the public will be surprised when the mounting is complete to find the position in which Sysonby's feet will be placed. He said the ordinary idea that the action of the fore and hind legs is simultaneous is erroneous.

FITZ WANTS ANOTHER
BOUT WITH JEFFRIES

NEW YORK, January 8.—Bob Fitzsimmons cannot remain inactive with the talk of $50,000 purses constantly ringing in his ears. He has just leaped into the limelight with an offer to tackle James J. Jeffries again for $50,000, of which $30,000 was to go to Jeffries.

Fitz said he would be sure of a good loser's end, and that even if defeated, he would guarantee to put up a more interesting argument than Squires, of Australia. Tommy Burns, incidentally, expresses a desire to meet O'Brien again, and says that he would also jump at a chance to tackle Burns.

When O'Brien beat Fitzsimmons on the coast there were many critics at the ringside who said that the battle had a queer look. Some of them went so far as to insinuate that Fitz got all the money for stopping of his own record, while O'Brien secured enough notoriety to make him a better drawing card on the road.

Fitz has not taken part in a ring contest since, and many felt that he had been let down. In view of the fight O'Brien put recently against Burns, another meeting between the aged Cornishman and the crafty Philadelphian might be of passing interest.

Warm at Arvon.

ARVONIA, Va., January 8.—Mr. Philip Nicholas and Mr. J. M. Wilson Smith killed a snake here to-day. The weather is very warm, the thermometer registers 81 degrees at 2 o'clock. Some men do not put on their coats since Sunday.

BALTIMORE TO HAVE HER OWN BUILDING

Appoints Committee and Makes Provision for Structure at Jamestown Exposition.

BALTIMORE, MD., January 8.—The city of Baltimore will have a building of its own at the Jamestown Exposition. This was determined at a meeting this afternoon in the Mayor's office of representatives of six prominent commercial organizations.

Unwilling to let a moment pass by fruitlessly, now that the opening of the exposition is so near at hand, the committee, which consists of the newly-elected chairman, Mr. H. F. Baker, and Messrs. G. P. Nelson and R. A. McCormick, will go to Norfolk Wednesday night, visit the Exposition Grounds Thursday morning, and endeavor in the course of the day to rent a suitable site for the building, for which purpose they are authorized to spend $600.

The probable dimensions of the building will not exceed 30 by 60 feet, but this will be in all ways adequate for what it is intended. The estimated cost of the building will be about $7,000.

ALL SOUTH WANTS
SUBTREASURY

Delegations From a Number of Cities Appear Before Commission.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 8.—Hearing on a location for a new sub-treasury in the Southeast began to-day before the House Committee on Ways and Means, with large delegations representing Atlanta, Savannah, Birmingham and other Southern cities. John Temple Graves and Joseph A. McCord presented the claims of Atlanta for the site. Mr. McCord, who is a member of the Georgia House of Representatives, and former Governor Joseph Johnson, of Alabama, urged that Birmingham be given the sub-treasury.

Representative Hale, of Tennessee, appeared in support of Knoxville as a location for the sub-treasury.

HEINZE CONTROLS
MERCANTILE BANK

Gould and Sixteen Old Directors Were Not Re-elected.

NEW YORK, January 8.—That control of the Mercantile National Bank, of this city, has passed from the hands of Edwin Gould and the interests he represents to those of F. A. Heinze was shown to-day at the election of a new board of directors of the bank. Mr. Gould, President Frederick B. Schenck, E. T. Jeffrey and F. A. Heinze and A. P. Heinze were among the new directors elected. A statement was issued by the chief interest, declaring that the vote was unanimous, and that any differences previously existing had been settled before the meeting. President Schenck resigned, but his successor was not chosen.

WILL NOT GIVE UP BALLOT-BOXES

ally served with a copy of Justice Hendrick's order commanding them in custody of the ballot-boxes to deliver the same to the Attorney-General. Mr. Jackson said that the commissioner refused to obey the court order, which the Attorney-General added, will have to be respected.

Attorney-General's Statement.

Attorney-General Jackson to-night said: "I took possession of the ballot-boxes containing the ballots voted at the last majority election, and had them officially sealed, because I wanted them as evidence in the quo warranto and also in criminal proceedings for violation of the election laws. I deemed it for the public interest and welfare to act and to safeguard the evidence, to take possession of it. I have no intention of returning the ballot-boxes away, and they will remain where they are, in the locations where they are stored are secure from fire or other damage."

The first place visited by the Attorney-General's men was the Staten Island Savings Bank, at Stapleton, S. I., where the Staten Island ballots are stored. The call was made long before daylight, and the men were refused admission to the building by the watchman. From the bank the men went to the home of President Herman Hagadorn, three miles away, where they found the president of the order upon him and directed him to comply at once with the order and open the bank vaults.

Hagadorn protested on the ground that there was no certainty that the court order was authentic. After a conference, however, it was decided to send for Robert Ross, chief of the Election Bureau, of the Borough of Richmond. Ross was obliged to walk several miles from his home to the bank, and in his presence the vault was opened and the new labels were affixed.

Mask and Jimmy.

Eugene L. Richards, Jr., of Mayor McClellan's council, issued a statement late in the night, with reference to the seizure of the ballot-boxes. He declared that the action "adds a chapter to a work which could be properly entitled 'How to Practice Law With Mask and Jimmy.'"

The statement continues: "The news of a midnight raid on the ballot-boxes in the Staten Island Savings Bank only confirms our judgment of the methods, purposes and official ideals of Attorney-General Jackson. Unwilling to work in daylight, he has, in the dark hours before dawn, without notice to the Board of Election, attempted to take from their present legal custody the ballot-boxes of the last majority election, turned them over to himself—that is to Shearn, his new deputy attorney-general, that is to Hearst. Of course, in the custody of Hearst they will be safe and inviolate; and, of course, too, it would be presumptuous for Mayor McClellan to protest against such custody, or even to suggest that he should have had notice of such a proceeding."

The Simplicity of Woman.

There is still some primitive simplicity left in the world. A woman, undoubtedly the victim of a serious mistake of identity in New York, arrested as a thief, had no lawyer in court, because she was laboring under the antediluvian delusion that all which justice and the law required was the plain telling of the simple truth. If such a preposterous theory were allowed, an appalling list of profits would be cut out of the court calendars.—Baltimore American.

Daily Court Record

Hustings Court.

In this court yesterday the case of L. L. Cornell, on appeal from the Police Court, where he had been tried on an indictment for Rob., was called. The defendant demurred to the indictment, and the court sustained the demurrer. The case is ended unless another indictment be returned therein.

This court will devote the time from January 22d to January 31st to hearing appeals for reduction of real estate assessment. This will be the last opportunity for consideration of such applications.

Law and Equity Court.

Judgments entered yesterday—Charity Dabney vs. John Oliver Lewis, in answer to appeal, for $50.
Decree entered yesterday—Granting absolute divorce to Cora Lee Normant vs. Robert O. Normant.
Cases set for to-day—James E. Turner vs. Receivers of the Virginia Passenger and Power Company et al., for $2,000 damages.

Property Transfers.

Richmond—George W. Gifford and wife to A. Rosenbaum, 12 feet on Sale Street, corner of Baker Street, $5.

E. C. Garrison and wife to Susan Elizabeth Christian, 30 feet on north line of Broad Street, 50 feet east of Thirty-sixth Street, $1,200.

R. B. Catlin and wife to Lillian H. Payne, 25 feet on north line of Leigh Street, 55 feet west of Second Street, $3,150.

Emma V. and C. W. Fellows to Mary V. Voller, 29 feet on Church Hill Avenue, $7,200, $1,800.

Henrico—Thomas H. Farrand and wife to J. M. Stammler, 65 feet on south side of Monroe Street, 100 feet from southwest corner of Church Street, plan of Monroe, $1,350.

Overcoat Cost Twenty-five Cents.

In a moment of extravagance to-day, Andrew Jackson Seaman, the Omaha school teacher, who lives on seventeen cents a day and is worth $100,000 or more, bought an overcoat for twenty-five cents. Then realizing what a spendthrift he had been the tax-tithe king tried to make up for his departure from his rigid rule of economy by saving a few pennies on another part of his attire. He needed a hat, so he bought one in the rubbish heap near his home. After a search through many he finally fished a ragged, discarded cap out of a heap and put it on. Thus attired, the eccentric rich man went to his office and boasted to his friends that he had procured a new overcoat and cap for twenty-five cents. Unlike other misers, Seaman laughs over his niggardliness.

What pleased him most was the fact that his "new" overcoat cost him ten cents less than the one he has worn for several years. A year ago he clothed himself from head to foot for $1.65. His coat cost thirty cents; trousers, sixty cents; hat, fifteen cents; vest, ten cents, and shoes fifty cents.

With a fortune at his command Seaman selects to live in a cold, barren room in the suburbs. He pays fifty cents a week for the room and spends about ten cents a day for food. It is an extraordinary event when he buys clothing.

He earned the name of tax king by attending delinquent tax sales. He always invests thousands of dollars, and claims to hold more titles than any other man in the city.

Ratskin for Gloves.

A glove manufacturer took from a cabinet in his office a handsome pair of brown gloves. "Ratskin," he said. "These gloves are made of ratskin. They look well at first glance, but examine them carefully. Look into the skin."

The skin, though soft and fine and supple, revealed close examination a great many cuts and scars and scratches. None of these went quite through; nevertheless their effect was to weaken the gloves greatly.

"These cuts and scars," said the manufacturer, "are what ratskins out of spirits do. You never get a skin with them. Hence you can't make a good, strong, perfect ratskin glove."

"These scars are the result of the rats' pugnacity. Rats fight so much that they become at an early age a mass of scars. Their torn hides are of no use to commerce."—Minneapolis Journal.
